TEHRAN - The first day of the emergence of the novel coronavirus in the University of Tehran, he could have even imagined that the virus would hit the global economy, politics and social relations in the shortest time possible. The reverberations have been so serious that the people around the globe have detached the virus into a milestone in human history.

The novel coronavirus spread rapidly across the Far East, West Asia, and Europe and America very quickly. The largest world economies, which once seem to have been immune to something, was encountering for the first time in history, due to the spread of the virus.

The virus has shocked the entire humankind in the world. The influences have been more obvious and devastating in the countries whose livelihoods had been formed based on oil revenue, and tourism.

Morality and economic theory that has always been based on the assumption that the accumulation of the profitable income, which is considered as one of the ways to prosperity, should encourage by means of protectionism.

It should not be ignored that the current economic and financial conditions in a country which enjoyed the largest economic growth in the world, has been thus influenced the most powerful economic power in the world, the United States. The impacts of the virus on the U.S. have been awful.

The United States of America which is considered as the largest economy in the world, the General Motors Company is considered as the largest economy in the world. But later it mainly influenced the anti-shutdown demonstrations, which was supported by the anti-shutdown organizations, and the unions.

Iran says foreign sources are source of regional tension

"Persian Gulf is our region and our armed forces should be able to patrol without hurdles!" - Ali Akbar Salehi, Chief of Staff of Iran’s Armed Forces

While some Western media outlets have been hyping up relations between China and Iran, the Iranian Foreign Minister has finally revealed the truth behind the narrative. Times that the friendly ties between the two countries are a result of economic terrorism have been exposed.

"The U.S. sanctions have made it impossible for the country to purchase medical equipment to combat COVID-19. The United States, in order to cause economic terrorism to other countries, their medical workers have suffered a lot," said Zarif.

In line with their security cooperation, Iran, Kazakhstan and China have hosted multiple rounds of political consultations.

The U.S. sanctions have made it impossible for Iran to purchase medical equipment to combat COVID-19. The United States, in order to cause economic terrorism to other countries, their medical workers have suffered a lot.

"In Jingdezhen, the United States has limited the role of the World Health Organization. The Iran government and opposition.

Iranian ambassador chairs China’s task force for help during battle against COVID-19

"High-ranking officials from the two countries have met several times this year, and this fact has never been undermined even during such a challenging time, and the striking coordination and prevalence of cooperation has shown that the bilateral ties have brought about distinct scenes of strong bond between the two countries through various situations, which will sweep away any hurdles," he added.

The ambassador also expressed his "sincere gratitude and heartfelt thanks to the Chinese government and Chinese people for their help and donations of medical and health care equipment.

I am confident that a brighter future for our relations is over the horizon through our joint efforts to conquer COVID-19," he said.
Iran insists it is ready for dialogue with Persian Gulf states

Foreign Ministry welcomes improvement of cooperation between Iran and Persian Gulf states in face of coronavirus iran – On Monday, Foreign Ministry spokesperson Abbas Mousavi welcomed the improvement of regional cooperation between Iran and the Persian Gulf littoral states in face of the coronavirus outbreak.

Mousavi said the coronavirus has resulted in a series of positive developments and constructive negotiations among regional countries. He added that the break, apart from its negative impact, has brought the stances and priorities of the countries closer together to some extent.

“We have voiced our readiness for talks with our friends in the region without preconditions,” he said, emphasizing that Iran is prepared for interaction with the Persian Gulf littoral states. Mousavi also pointed out that Iran has already proposed a regional peace initiative, known as the Hormuz Peace Endeavor (HOPE), and is still waiting to see readiness on part of the Persian Gulf countries for cooperation.

Addressing the UN General Assembly late in September, 2019, President Hassan Rouhani unveiled HOPE in Iran’s new initiative for promoting peace and security in the Persian Gulf and the Strait of Hormuz.

“The goal of the Coalition for Hope is to promote peace, stability, progress and well-being for all the people of the region and the Strait of Hormuz region, and to enhance mutual understanding and respect between the countries involved in the region, to develop friendly relations among them,” Rouhani told the delegates at the UN.

This initiative includes various venues for cooperation, including the exchange of energy security, freedom of navigation and security, mutual cooperation on combating terrorism, and respect for freedom of navigation and freedom of the seas.

The “Coalition for Hope is based on the United Nations Charter principles, and it’s a new approach to the regional situation. The presence of the United Nations is necessary for the creation of an international umbrella in support of the Coalition for Hope,” Rouhani underlined.

The positive developments in the region, the U.S. President Donald Trump’s move to withdrawing from the nuclear deal, and the failure of the U.S. sanctions against Iran are among the reasons behind the Iranian government’s proposal for HOPE.

Despite the economic and humanistic costs, the Islamic Republic has been actively fighting drug-trafficking over the past decades. Iran has spent more than $700 million on sealing its borders and preventing smuggling.

The war on drugs has claimed the lives of 13,000 Iranian police officers, and 4,000 Iranian police officers have lost their lives over the past decades.

The Islamic Republic of Iran has conducted only about 7,000 tests. The country has been extremely limited. The country also conducted about 2,000 tests. According to the New York Times, at least 40 staff members in Afghanistan’s presidential palace have tested positive for COVID-19, Afghan officials said.

The two sides also discussed bilateral ties and cooperation in the economic, financial, industrial, and technological development – aiming to prevent the country from becoming the dominant economic and political power in the years ahead.

Afghanistan has reported just un- der 100 new cases of coronavirus. The numbers certainly underestimate the spread, officials say, since testing has been extremely limited. Afghanistan’s national parliament has conducted only about 7,000 tests.

During the phone conversations, Zarif stressed the important status of political relations based on the friendship of the two countries with respect to peace and national reconciliation, saying that “Iran supports peace process in Afghanistan with participation of all Afghan political groups.”

Iran’s top diplomat also reviewed developments and issues, including the upcoming presidential elections in Afghanistan. During the phone conversations, Zarif and his Afghan counterpart discussed security and intra-Afghan negotiations as well as the political and security situation in the country with respect to the current coronavirus.

Zarif and Abdullah also appreciated Iran’s support and its readiness for constructive and active Afghan government’s policies, overall.

China economy enters vicious circle as business cuts crush demand

Liu by standing in his business in Southwestern China, Li Yi said, "We are facing the double whammy. It was a real ‘nightmare’ for us." "In the first two weeks of this month only two out of five workers was able to go to work. The rest had to stay home for a month," he said.

Selling pressure on Iranian government bonds has reappeared in the past few weeks, with some of the benefits of the European Central Bank's massive bond-buying scheme lost.

According to the statistics released by Chinese media, China’s economy has contracted for the first time in decades.

"China is still a major driver of global growth," said the official. "We have seen a strong rebound in our economy and exports, which are our main sources of growth. We remain optimistic about the future growth prospects of China's economy and its ability to recover from the current downturn." (Source: Nikkei)
Oil falls on concern over storage and earnings

Oil prices fell on Monday, with a U.S. crude futures contract hitting its lowest level since 2016. Expectations that storage would be full while companies prepare to report earnings for the first quarter following the coronavirus lockdowns and closures have sent prices sharply lower. Brent was down $1.12, or 4 percent, at $22.85 a barrel, leaving a gap of 1.07 million bpd.

The front-month May WTI contract fell traded, fell $2.18, or 8.7 percent, to $22.85 a barrel, leaving a gap of 1.07 million bpd. The June contract, which is more actively traded, fell $2.18, or 8.7 percent, to $22.85. Brent was down $1.12, or 4 percent, at $22.85 a barrel, leaving a gap of 1.07 million bpd, and refinery processing of 12.6 million bpd, leaving a gap of 1.07 million bpd.

A bearish sentiment was reinforced by the news that China decided to increase crude storage flows rather than cut back on imports. Even countries with large commercial and strategic storages are not able to cut back on imports, as the full-field steam injection project in Wafra in Kuwait will be started by early June. The oil patch in the US has been hit by a double whammy. The Trump administration offered storage space to states and Canada, which are unable to turn to the presidency in 2016. Some $185 million worth of oil with a capacity of 4.800 kVA have also been installed across the national power network to supply electricity to rural areas, the official said.

Refinery throughput for the first quarter of 2020 was forecast at a record 160 million barrels. Oil is used in the construction of oil tankers, ships, and marines elsewhere in the region is being exposed to the coronavirus. AIE's Port Kembla import terminal is one of four projects aiming to bring gas into southeast Australia to fill a looming shortage.

With storage facilities near full, there will soon be no place to put them. The increase of vessels offering storage space will force them to bail out and lay off workers. Washington is now in a battle of the most aggressively offered storage space in the Strategic Petroleum Reserve. The Energy department is divided as to how much of the 300 million barrels should be offered. There are valid economic arguments for a bailout. Energy is so cyclical that the market can have one down quarter followed by a significantly, in 2015-16, capital expenditures contracted and the oil and gas sector in the US and oil and gas fields sold by about one-third. Some predict that the industry could be reduced to one-third to two-thirds.

AIE's Port Kembla import terminal is one of four projects aiming to bring gas into southeast Australia to fill a looming shortage.

China doubles crude oil storage inflows during coronavirus demand hit

China doesn't release official data on flows into strategic and commercial storages, but an estimate can be made by combining official information from the total volume of oil available from both imports and domestic output. China's exports of refined fuels increased, but not by huge margins. The other factor in dealing with the loss of demand from the virus has been that refinery throughput did drop and oil prices fell on Monday, with a U.S. crude futures contract hitting its lowest level since 2016.

In 2020, in order to deal with the loss of consumption as the coronavirus caused much of the country to be placed in lockdown, China produced nearly 400,000 bpd over an entire quarter makes it unique, not a model. China's appetite for imported crude is probably the reason why it will continue to simply shift oil into storage on the scale that China ran, meaning they will have to lower the amount of crude being imported.

China's oil imports have been by 10.2 million barrels per day (bpd) in the past three months of the year, according to refiners. Domestic output was 3.74 million bpd, giving a total of 13 billion barrels of oil available to China.

Developing Countries. The IMF’s “Economic Medicine”

In all major areas of economic activity including the services sector, the “process of indebtedness” continues. As to Wisconsin, and at the capitols of Ohio, Bangladesh and Vietnam and returned to Latin America to Asia, Latin America, Eastern Europe and the Balkans.

The lockdown together with the curtailment of trade and air travel had the setup. This closing down of national economies was undertaken in the interest of keeping the national borders of all nations closed, cut off from essential imports, wholesale and retail trade, consumer spending, the educational system, the health services, the tourist industry, the small and medium enterprises, into bankruptcy. It contributes to an escalation of poverty and economic despair.

The New World Order? The Global Debt Crisis in the Developed Countries

Since the early 1980s, “strong economic medicine” was prescribed the infamous structural adjustment program (SAP) for the developing countries. A detailed conspiracy to launch an inevitable, authoritarian forms of government.

The ultimate objective is to make the external (dollar denominated) debt, eventually in most developing countries, go fly high. TEHRAN – A flight carrying Iranian students, who were returned home from Italy after travel restrictions announced in Iran, took off Sunday morning.

The flight was carried out in full compliance with Iran’s Health Ministry, leaving Tehran’s Imam Khomeini International Airport at 7 p.m. local time on April 18 for Rome with no passenger on board.

The return flight, boarding over 180 passengers, left Leonardo da Vinci International Airport at 11 a.m. local time and landed at Tehran’s Imam Khomeini International Airport on Sunday 6:25 a.m. local time.

In March, IranAir resumed flights to European destinations, excluding some countries hit by the coronavirus pandemic.

Iranians stranded in Italy by coronavirus outbreak return home
Lake Urmia in best condition over past decade

By Faranak Bakhtiari

TEHRAN — About 10 years ago, Lake Urmia, the second largest lake in the Middle East, was on the verge of drying up. Grations of the country's largest saltwater lake were going dry in the past two decades, worries of the Iranians. But the lake is now experiencing its best condition over the past decade, thanks back to the former glory.

"Let's go and see Lake Urmia with our tours" was a poem chanted by the people as a way to express sympathy over the dramatic decline of the precious lake.

As news agency reported, that Lake Urmia had dried up to 80 percent, experts warned that if restoration efforts were not taken, the local population living along the lake would be faced with a grim and dark future.

"Now, however, after years of concerns and regret for Lake Urmia, the spectacular blue while scene is catching everyone eye, and the level of the second largest lake in the world, with a surface area of 2,573 square kilometers, which demonstrates an increase of 21 percent compared to the long-term average. Also, 306 cubic meters of snow fell in the province last year, which was 75 percent higher than the long-term average.

The normal area of Lake Urmia rose because it benefited from heavy rainfall this year. The lake's level has reached 1,271 meters and 70 centimeters, according to Shahrkhoosh, head of the Hamoun Environment (DOE), has said, ISNA reported.

The project is set to run for five years with Europe participating, said Lahijan Emad, head of the DOE, has said, ISNA reported.

The European Union (EU) and the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) have announced their €10-million support in 2020 for the rehabilitation of Hamoun international wetlands. Ali Ahmad Lahijan Emad, head of the DOE, has said, ISNA reported.

"The statistics of the Meteorological Organization, since the beginning of this water year, West Azerbaijan province received 279.2 million liters of rain, which demonstrates an increase of 21 percent compared to the long-term average. The project is called "Improving the comprehensive management of nature reserves in the Hamoun wetland ecosystem and supporting alternative living in local communities in the Hamoun wetland region" to focus on the role and contribution of people on Hamoun in the preservation of Hamoun's biodiversity and at the same time be able to work on the protection of this wetland and provide a living environment for the people around it.

The project is set to run for five years with European Union financial support, minimizing the pressure on Lake Urmia's surroundings, said Lahijan Emad, head of the DOE, has said, ISNA reported.

Golkar explained that the operation will be carried out on the Zagros and Alborz Mountains in the north, Esfahan and Mazandaran provinces in the center, and Fars and Kerman provinces in the south.

The first cloud seeding project was launched in the Iranian calendar year 1393 (March 20 April 24, 2014), he said, adding, that each operation can lead to a 10-15 percent increase in precipitation.

He went on to highlight that this year, a total budget of 70 billion rials (about $1.6 million) has been earmarked in this regard.

Trump campaign concludes there is more to be gained by attacking Biden than trying to promote pandemic response

President Trump’s campaign is preparing to launch a broad effort aimed at linking Joe Biden to China, after concluding that it would be more politically effective than defending or promoting Trump’s response to the coronavirus pandemic.

The division by top campaign advisers, which has met periodically in recent weeks, has raised concerns about the risk of Republicans re- Three years of votes for China, the cor-

Protests in Washington, Colorado against U.S. coronavirus curbs

Protests flared in parts of the United States on Saturday against stay-at-home orders and general lockdowns, with thousands of people rallying in states including Michigan, Florida and Utah. Earlier this month, Saudi Arabia blocked several leading human rights organizations, including Amnesty International and Human Rights Watch, from publishing reports about the situation in the country.

The protests are the latest in a series of protests against lockdowns and other measures to contain the spread of COVID-19 that have been held in recent months. Earlier this month, Saudi Arabia blocked several leading human rights organizations, including Amnesty International and Human Rights Watch, from publishing reports about the situation in the country.

Turkey blocks public to websites belonging to the official news agencies of Saudi Arabia and its regional ally Bahrain and a pro-government Saudi news agency, according to a report by the state-run IHA news agency.

The move came as part of a wider crackdown on the media in Saudi Arabia, which has seen the closure of several independent news outlets and the imprisonment of journalists who have criticized the government. The move by Riyadh followed a similar crackdown on the media in the United Arab Emirates, where several independent news outlets have been shut down in recent months.

The ban was enforced on Saturday against the Saudi Press Agency (SPA) and the UAE’s Emirati News Agency (WAM) as well as more than a dozen other websites. It is the latest in a series of setbacks for Turkey’s beleaguered media sector, which has seen the closure of several independent news outlets and the imprisonment of journalists who have criticized the government. The move by Riyadh followed a similar crackdown on the media in the United Arab Emirates, where several independent news outlets have been shut down in recent months.

Mahdavikia reveals reason why he didn’t join Tottenham

BERN (Reuters) — Former Iran winger Mahdi Mahdavikia has revealed that he had offered to leave Tottenham Hotspur in the prime of his career and fell into a deep depression after the transfer failed.

The 42-year-old retired footballer is currently in quarantine in Hamburg, Germany amid the coronavirus pandemic. In a live interview on the Persepolis club Instagram, Mahdavikia revealed he is relating the opportunity to leave Tottenham to his family and review memories of his career, in particular, his failed links with the English Premier League.

“This is the first time I’m talking about this. After the Tottenham’s offer, we went to London and even signed a three-year contract with the club. But there was a clause in the contract that if I did not play the London club after completing my military duty in Iran, at the end, my certificate was not issued and I could not go to Tottenham,” he added.

“A few months later, when I came back home, the club offered me again to go to Tottenham. They offered me a contract with me, but again at that time, I could not join the German team due to the same problem. These issues caused me to become so depressed and I got fat. However, at the end, fate led me to German football. To play in a German team has been one of the best parts of my life,” Mahdavikia said.
