Iran says France and Britain have given in to U.S. bullying

TEHRAN — Iran says France and Britain have given in to U.S. bullying and France's ambassador to Tehran, Nathalie Taravel, has told Tehran's mayor that the European countries' failure to support President Donald Trump's harmful remarks about Tehran is undeniable.

Iran's Foreign Ministry spokesman, Bahram Ghasemi, said on Wednesday that the European countries' lack of action against Trump's and the United States' determination to cause trouble in this area is undeniable.

Iran's Foreign Ministry spokesman also dismissed the statement made by the Trump administration that the country is ready to confront any act of aggression that the U.S. and its allies might undertake.

He added that Iran's diplomacy is also working to ensure that any actions taken by the Europeans are not in line with the U.S. stance in the region.

On Monday, Iran's state-run IRIB reported that the European Union has recognized the U.S. as the only player that can have a say in the region, and that Iran's and the EU's determination to protect the rights of the people in the region is undeniable.

Iran is a member of the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA) and has been involved in the negotiations for the betterment of the region.

The Islamic Republic of Iran is determined to continue its efforts to protect the rights of the people in the region and to ensure the stability and security of the region.

The report also noted that the U.S. and its allies have been trying to undermine the region's stability and security, and that the EU's recognition of the U.S. as the only player that can have a say in the region is a clear indication of its determination to protect the rights of the people in the region.

Iran's monthly crude steel output up 14%

TEHRAN — Production of crude steel in Iran has risen 10.4 percent in March 2020 from March 2019, Iranian Mines and Mining Industries Development and Renovation Organization (IMIDRO) announced citing the data indicated in the World Steel Association (WSA) latest report.

The WSA's report, which is on steel production by 64 countries, put Iran's steel output at over 2.6 million tons in March, IRNA reported.

The report also said that crude steel production by the 64 producers has fallen 1.5 percent during the first quarter of this year compared to a year ago at the same time in the past year.

Production by China, the world's largest steel producer, dropped 1.7 percent in March, while Iran's 10.4 percent increase was the first quarter on an annual basis, the report confirmed.

Meanwhile, production by India, Japan, and South Korea fell 13.9 percent, 9.7 percent and 7 percent, respectively, during the first month of the current year compared to the same month in the previous year.

Iran's monthly performance was reported as being positive in the steel sector, as its rival Turkey could achieve a growth of just 4.1 percent in March.

The report also noted that Iran's output, which is one of the largest and most diverse steel producers in the world, is still among the world's largest steel producers, and that Iran's performance is still stronger than its rivals in the region.

Sanctions on Iran has revealed U.S. ‘inhuman’ image: analyst

FEAR IN THE AIR — The United States’ actions against Iran during the coronavirus pandemic has revealed Washington’s “inhuman” image, says an international airport.

Remember, we were among the countries who first asked for help from the IMF. We called on the United States to provide ‘the means and the machinery of adjustment’ for the 2019 agreement, which threatened to kill the entire global economy. Iran says France and Britain have given in to U.S. bullying

“Europe must work together to save the JCPOA,” said a member of the IRGC Navy on Thursday during a Thursday edition of Press TV’s The Debate program, while commenting on Washington's anti-Iran statement.

U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo claimed the launch was a “violation of UN Security Council resolution 2231” and that the United States would “block all Iranian oil sales”.

“Let’s be clear,” said the member of the IRGC Navy, “Washington has been bullying all against UNSC 2231 since 2017. Europe obeyed US instead of 2321. Neither can we listen to the US or to the EU, especially with the US blocking their resolve in the conflict.”

Moscow says concerned by U.S. military threats against Iran

By Yevgeny Teihin — The Kremlin is concerned about Washington's threats to destroy Iranian weapons in the Persian Gulf, President Hassan Rouhani has said in the latest round of U.S.-Iran tensions, as Moscow has ramped up its military and diplomatic efforts to help defuse the crisis.

On April 13, the U.S. Central Command claimed that 11 vessels of the Iranian Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC) had conducted “dangerous and harassing” maneuvers around U.S. warships in the Persian Gulf.

But U.S. President Donald Trump said he had directed the U.S. navy to target and destroy any Iranian boats that approach U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf.

The Iranian military responded by saying that it would destroy any U.S. vessels that “violate Iran’s maritime rights” in the Persian Gulf if the U.S. government sought to get Iranian Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC) boats from sailing in the Persian Gulf due to the alleged Iranian threats.

Russia has rejected allegations that it has encouraged Iran's higher-profile military actions, warning the West against “provocative” behavior.

“President Hassan Rouhani has said in the latest round of U.S.-Iran tensions, as Moscow has ramped up its military and diplomatic efforts to help defuse the crisis.”

Rouhani said that “Iran's military activity in the Persian Gulf has nothing to do with provoking the West" and that it serves to deter Iran's enemies and partners from any “sudden military aggression in the region".

The Trump administration has been accused of targeting Iran’s military and economic assets in order to pressure Tehran into negotiating a new nuclear deal.

In response, Iran has launched several missiles at bases belonging to U.S. and Israeli forces in Iraq, saying it is defending its sovereignty and national security.

President Rouhani has said Iran has the right to defend itself against any threats, including those posed by the U.S. and its allies.

On April 17, the U.S. President Donald Trump said he had directed the U.S. navy to target and destroy any Iranian boats that approach U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf.

Rouhani has also said that the U.S. and its allies are “playing with fire” by targeting Iran and that the Persian Gulf is a “great international highway” for trade and commerce.

U.S. deficit could quadruple to $3.7 trillion in coronavirus crisis: CBO

A nationwide business shutdown and surge in U.S. government spending will likely cause the U.S. budget deficit to swell to $3.7 trillion this fiscal year as the country combats the coronavirus pandemic, according to the congressional forecast.

The CBO forecast revised down its estimate of the government's budget deficit for the fiscal year ending in September, saying it would be $3.7 trillion, up from $3.3 trillion projected in January. The government deficit is expected to remain in the trillions for the next decade.

The report said the deficit would be 11.1% of GDP this year, compared to 6.7% in 2019. It projected the deficit would peak at 16.3% of GDP in 2021 before declining to 9.4% in 2022.

The CBO also projected the federal debt-to-GDP ratio, which was 79.6% in 2019, would rise to 105.8% in 2021 and remain above 100% through 2031.

The agency predicted real GDP will decline 1.1% in 2021 and then grow 5.2% in 2022. But economic activity for 2021 will still be 3.9% below the level the agency expected before the pandemic.

Economic growth is expected to fall to minus 3.7% in the first quarter, the agency said, with the economy contracting at a rate of 4.8% on an annualized basis. The CBO forecast the economy will expand 6.8% in the second quarter and 3% in the third and fourth quarters.

Coronavirus cases increasing at Russian oil, gas projects

The vaccine that promises to stop the coronavirus is expected to be ready later this year. But the pandemic has already caused a surge in demand for medical supplies and personal protective equipment (PPE). One of the largest employers in Russia, which is facing an intense outbreak of the virus, is the Russian oil and gas company, Gazprom. The company has reported more than 10,000 cases of COVID-19 among its employees and contractors. Gazprom has implemented strict measures to prevent the spread of the virus, including social distancing, regular testing, and the use of protective equipment.

The crisis has led to a decrease in gas prices and has caused a loss of revenue for the company.

Expert panel on ending democracy, arising nationalism, and global pandemics

The growing authoritarian tendencies of the White House’s current leaders, who see the world on a global basis, are likely to be reflected in the growing wave of nationalism across the globe.

Marvin Buijsh, a senior political analysis from the United States, warned that since the outbreak of the coronavirus, there has been a general feeling that the world is an adversarial place, with no point that will no longer stay.

The real danger, and the (two) liberal democracies, which amongst those that have taken country-specific action against a pandemic, which is why in definition of liberty and national action, one would imagine.

But consider the state and the rise of nationalism, the ascendance of populism, the hyper populism, nation-alist culture of the last two decades, which has meant that policies that focus less on arms export, and more on health guidelines and solutions, and the col- lection and distribution of resources, will be more easily accepted by the people.

The US is also known for its much-loved “united Europe”.

In his 2018 UN speech, the “leader of the free world” World Health Organization (WHO) has expressed grave concerns about the global pandemic and its impact on the world. It means policies that focus less on arms export, and more on health guidelines and solutions, and the collection and distribution of resources, will be more easily accepted by the people.

In realistic terms, this all means less open, more protectionist, dangerous, and xenophobic. It means policies that focus less on arms export, and more on health guidelines and solutions, and the collection and distribution of resources, will be more easily accepted by the people.

That is why the US is now marching straight down the same path that was set in motion by the hyper populist, nation-alist culture of the last two decades, which has meant that policies that focus less on arms export, and more on health guidelines and solutions, and the collection and distribution of resources, will be more easily accepted by the people.

But if history is any guide, people could well choose to ignore it. The recognition that the virus affects the poor and disenfranchised more than the rich, and more privileged and that any person of color, including women, gender, or race could contract and transmit the virus, should also be noted.

This too shall pass. It will be ok in the long run. This means that collective action and cooperation is necessary. This means that collective action and cooperation is necessary. This means that collective action and cooperation is necessary.

Referring to the conditions imposed on Iran by U.S. sanctions, Khan said: “I understand that your authorities will tell us about the problems that have been faced, and I hope that this problem will be solved soon.”

Khan said for his part that Iran is fighting coronavirus equally like all the other countries in the world and that he believes today that the pandemic is affecting everyone globally.

In order to prevent the spread of the disease, Khan said that the pandemic, the pandemic is expected to increase, mostly due to the severe global crisis, Khan added that Tehran has faced 50% of the problems that have been faced in Iran. It has consistently pointed that poor economic performance and high rates of increase in the number of food insecure people.

It’s hard not to anticipate a significant decrease in the use of motorcycles for personal transportation, as a result of COVID-19 and the recession. This goes beyond food systems. Filling all price gaps for example, will disproportionately affect the urban poor, who are more likely to become harder to sustain relief efforts for existing humanitarian programs in particular for food security. This shouldn’t be allowed to happen.

FIFA to support member associations in response to COVID-19 impact

FIFA will release all operational funding due to Member Associations for the years 2019 and 2020 in the coming days as the first step of a relief plan to assist the football community impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic.

This measure will mean that a total of around $135 million will be distributed among the 21 national football governing bodies around the world.

The pandemic has caused unprecedented challenges to the entire football community and, as the world governing body, it is FIFA’s duty and responsibility to help the ones that are facing acute needs.

The plan starts by providing immediate financial assistance to our Member Associations facing severe financial distress. This is the first step of a far-reaching financial relief plan we are developing to respond to the emergency across the whole football community. Together with our stakeholders, we will look at the operational costs of Member Associations and we will also consider other stages of this relief plan.

The Programme is designed to support the chairpersons of the FIFA Development Committees, Asian Football Confederation and the FIFA Finance Committee, for their commitment and urgent approval of these measures immediately following the current crisis.

This immediate financial assistance should be used to mitigate the financial impact of COVID-19 on football in Member Associations, namely to meet financial or operational obligations that they may have towards staff and other stakeholders, especially third parties. The standard obligations and responsibilities in relation to the use of these funds as outlined in the Forward 2.0 Program will be released in full for the years 2019 and 2020. In particular, the release of the second instalment of operational costs for 2020, which was originally due in July, will be paid immediately.

Under normal circumstances, FIFA’s Member Associations would only receive the financial assistance based on the first step of this plan if they have met the following conditions: (i) fulfillment of key criteria; (ii) fulfillment of standard obligations and responsibilities, and (iii) experience severe financial distress. The process will be completed in the coming days.

This financial relief plan is possible thanks to the strong financial position that FIFA has been able to consolidate in the last few years with the support of all stakeholders.
