Tourism industry to rebound sooner than expected: deputy minister

The elite U.S. special operations forces are ill-equipped for a high-tempo conflict with China and Russia, experts warn, as the Trump administration pivots from the “war on terror” to a struggle with geopolitical rivals. Special operations, known for taking down terrorist leaders in high-value targets, number 70,000 personnel, cost $13bn a year and have carried much of the burden of the war on terror. But is it unclear what role they will play as the U.S. develops new capabilities to “compete and win” with China and Russia.

General Richard Clarke, commander of special operations command (SOCOM), told an industry conference this week that the U.S. needed to develop new technologies “to compete and win” with China and Russia. He added that SOCOT must develop new skills and focus on influences campaigns rather than “shell-cell missions” that characterized his own time in Afghanistan after the September 11, 2001 attacks.
Iran’s principled policy is expanding ties with Iraq: Rouhani

POLITICAL

TEHRAN – President Hassan Rouhani said on Monday that Iran’s principled policy is expanding relations with Iraq and other countries in various areas.

In a phone conversation with Iraqi Prime Minister Saad al-Halbusi, Rouhani reiterated the significance of the, “oil pipeline” agreement with Iraq, which requires the participation of the two countries in the, “Middle East Bank, to enable humanitarian transactions.”

Rouhani also highlighted the importance of regional peace and stability.

For his part, Halbusi said, “We will never forget Iran’s help to Iraq in fighting Daesh and we seek expansion of relations in various areas.”

Iranian Defense Minister Amir Hatami said on Sunday that Tehran and Baghdad should become “strategic partners.”

“We want to give Iran all our capabilities and we want to become strategic partners and turn our relations into a successful model of cooperation,” he told the newly-appointed Iranian Defense Minister Esmail Sharif-Abadi through a video conference.

U.S. positive about S. Korea’s push to build mechanism for humanitarian transactions with Iran: source (Yonhap) – The United States “positively” views South Korea’s push to forge a payment mechanism to conduct humanitarian transactions with Iran, a source said on Monday.

The source, who asked not to be named, said the U.S. is looking at humanitarian transactions with Iran, but not at nuclear weapons-related deals.

The KHTA uses an Iranian bank free from U.S. sanctions, the source said, adding that the KHTA is doing “a lot” of business with South Korea.

“The U.S. has positively viewed Seoul’s push for the KHTA as it is a model for other humanitarian transactions,” the source added.

The source said the KHTA’s use of the Iranian bank is “an issue of mathematics” and “there are no issues with it.”

“Despite its positive stance, the U.S. has not been able to move forward on the issue of humanitarian transactions with Iran due to the pandemic, but discussions have moved forward to some extent,” the source said.

To restart humanitarian trade with Tehran, Seoul has also been pushing to return the IRGC and the U.S. government’s General License No. 8 – a mechanism to authorize certain humanitarian transactions with Iran even if they involve Iran’s central bank, which is subject to U.S. sanctions.

Although humanitarian experts are not subject to sanctions, South Korean firms have difficulty resuming their sales of medicine and other products to Iran due to concerns that they could be affected by the American sanctions.

Monthly steel ingot production surpasses 2.3m tons

In its outlook plan for the Iranian calendar year 1404 (2023-2024) Iran has envisaged production of 35 million tons of steel per annum, and to achieve this target the country requires to produce 160 million tons of iron ore per year.

Industry, Mining, and Trade Ministry has announced that production of iron ore concentrates in Iran reached 47.316 million tons in the previous Iranian calendar year, registering a four-percent rise compared to the preceding year.

The country has extracted 64.274 million tons of iron ore during the past year, according to data released by Iran's Mines and Mining Industries Development and Renovation Organization.

In a bid to prevent the export of unprocessed minerals, creating more value-added and meeting the requirements of domestic producers for the raw materials, Iran has levied a 25-percent duty on the exports of concentrates since the beginning of the current year on March 20, 2023.

Meanwhile, Managing Director of Iran's Agricultural Parks Company (APC) Ali Asghar Mansouri has recently announced that some 1,500 hectares of fishery parks are planned to be inaugurated in the country in the current year.

Chabahar Port's capacity for transit an advantage for Turkmenistan

TEHRAN — The governor of Sistan-Baluchestan Province said Turkmenistan can use the capacity of Chabahar Port (in southeast of Iran) and its trade-industrial free zone for transporting goods, IRNA reported.

Speaking in a video conference with Iran's ambassador to Turkmenistan Gholam Ali Abkar, mines and mining industries head Mohammad Ali Mousavi said Sistan-Baluchestan Province, especially Chabahar, enjoys many capacities in trade, economic and commercial fields.

Chabahar is connected to the open waters and plays a major role in developing trade, he added.

Sistan-Baluchestan is considered an important opportunity for domestic and foreign investors, he said, adding that executive bodies will work hard to create easy economic environments.

Elaborating on investment opportunities in Sistan-Baluchestan Province, the official said, "For the first time in the history of Turkmen economic activities' investment and participation in Iran's Sistan-Baluchestan Province; Turkmenistan's government has authorized许久 Chabahar Port, the heart of the country's private sector for transit and transport projects to be connected to the Turkmenistan-European countries' rail network."
Dubai crude futures time-spreads dip despite physical market firming

Benchmark Dubai crude futures time-spreads are seen firming in Asia, even as differentials for physical barrels are falling. Oil prices rose in Asia as a broader market rose amid improved sentiment. At 11:10 a.m. U.S. Eastern Daylight Time (1500 GMT) Monday, the Dubai/July-Dubai futures time-spread was pegged at minus $1.75/b, after rising from minus $2.00/b on Friday, when the July/August spread was at minus $1.73/b. In comparison, the June/July time-spread was pegged at minus $1.87/b on Friday. The spread was last in backwardation on March 5 at minus $2.17/b.

Several tenders for West Asia crude cargoes are due to be released this week following an auction last month, when the June/July spread was pegged at minus 12 cents/b, the highest since mid-March. Softer sentiment in the market was reinforced as U.S. Federal Reserve Chairman Jerome Powell issued an optimistic outlook for economic recovery later this year.

The recent drop in financial markets amid the coronavirus, I think you will see the economy recover really smoothly through the first half of the year,” Powell said Sunday night in broadcast remarks.

The June WTI contract expires on Tuesday, but there was little indication of it repeating a historic plunge before the last month of the month in the case of the contract’s expiry.

“Clearly the fundamentals in the market are robust, but we continue to believe that the market is trading too much on emotion, with the demand side vulnerable to supply and demand imbalances,” ING analyst Warren Patterson said.

Several crude producers are planning to release more crude supplies, including Russia, a grouping known as OPEC+. The United Arab Emirates has said it will increase production to the upper limit of its OPEC+ agreement and hold its output at 7.492 million bpd. Saudi Arabia and Kuwait in December agreed to restart the Al-Khafji oil field, part of their shared Neutral Zone – as of now, according to a source with knowledge of the situation.

The shutdown comes just months after both countries agreed to resume production at the Neutral Zone, which produced about 140,000 bpd from the market. The Al-Khafji share was about 70,000 bpd, with the rest shared between the two countries in a 70-30 split.

The shutdown of Al-Khafji comes just one week after the June/July time-spread was pegged at minus $1.75/b, a level not seen since mid-March. The spread was last in backwardation on March 5 at minus $2.17/b.

Kuwaiti and Saudi Arabias argued to stop production at the Neutral Zone, with the United Arab Emirates the scale of Petroleum, Qatar, or QPSP, awarded two July Arabid, Al-Shakki crude cargoes at an average discount of around $2.75/b in Platts from-most Dubai crude assessments, according to market sources. Last week, Saudi Arabia said it was offering its June/July spread was assessed at minus $2.75/b.

In June/July time-spreads for various grades of crude oil are tracking at $4.00/b, while the Asian market is tracking at $3.25/b. In comparison, the June/July spread was pegged at minus $1.75/b on Friday. The spread was last in backwardation on March 5 at minus $2.17/b.

German Foreign Minister Heiko Maas said the bloc of nations from countries affected by the coronavirus pandemic would modernize existing rules to improve health and safety measures.

The coronavirus pandemic is reshaping global priorities, with leaders in both the United States and China focusing on the need to work together.

The United States has suffered more than 300,000 deaths so far, but it has also faced an unprecedented economic downturn.

The United Nations Secretary-General António Guterres’s appeal for a global ceasefire has been largely ignored by many countries, but it has also been dismissed by some as a Band-Aid solution to a much larger problem.

The United Nations and the World Health Organization have both called for a global ceasefire, but it has been met with resistance from many countries. The United States has been particularly vocal in its opposition to the proposal.

The United Nations has let down the people of Afghanistan, and especially the women and children, who have been left to fend for themselves in the wake of the Taliban’s arrival. The United Nations has been criticized for its failure to take a firm stance against the Taliban and its support for the Afghan government.

Medical waste disposal become possible using plasma technology in Iran

Using plasma gasification, Iranian researchers managed to dispose medical wastes and disseminate all its hazardous gasses by filters, IRNA reported recently.

Considering numerous problems encountered in medical and urban waste management, the researchers decided to employ high technology to overcome these. Therefore, Mahmood Quran Nejati, official with Vice Presidency for Science and Technology has said. He went on to say that recently, autoclaves are used as waste disposal facilities in hospitals; the temperature of the autoclave is 120°C and most of the bacteria are killed and subsequently they can contribute to various environmental problems.

Referring to the foreign countries reluctance to provide us with high technology machinery, Nejati stated that the import of medical waste disposal units to Iran, cause us to deal with the technical and disinfection, we managed to domesticate the necessary equipment needed for healthcare waste treatment and disposal.

Imam Ali Islamic Center in Sweden holding online religious programs in Ramadan

TEHRAN – Due to the coronavirus pandemic, Imam Ali Center in Stockholm, Sweden has shifted to holding online religious rituals in the holy month. This was announced by Mehr news agency the spokesperson of the center elaborated on its activities.

In Ramadan, Muslims across the world fast, abstaining from eating, drinking and socializing from dawn until sunset in observance of one of the religious’ primary holidays. In Sweden, however, Muslims do not fast rituals, too. Hence the Imam Ali Center called the center decided to hold online activities such as daily communal prayer, Friday prays, quls reading and other Iran-Iran and cultural celebrations that interest Muslims, especially Shia, in Scandinavia.

The center has been a creator of a friendly relationship and cooperation with various institutions, including government, to facilitate the integration of Muslims into Swedish society.

How many Muslims and Shiites are there in Sweden?

According to the last survey, there are more than 800,000 Muslims living in Sweden, most of them are Shi’ite Muslims.

In recent decades, the Shi’ite community in Sweden, like other Shi’ite communities worldwide, has been able to establish itself here. They have their mosques and shrines and their cultural and religious activities.

There is also a good relationship between religious communities and the government.

What Islamic rituals are held at the center in Ramadan?

In the holy month of Ramadan, the Imam Ali Islamic Center in Stockholm is open daily, where it offers religious services, cultural ceremonies, education, children’s activities, and other rituals.

In previous years, we used to hold daily programs in Ramadan when various religious needs were met such as daily communal prayer (Isha), the day of prayer of supplication (Iftar), and Ashura. In celebration of the holy month, we used to increase the visitation of Imam Hussain’s burial site, observed the mourning for Imam Hussain’s death, and held programs of cooperation with the Imam Ali (AS) martyrdom.

Our programs in this year are online. As I said, the same time is, in Persian, Arab, and Isfahani. Several thousand people have attended these in previous years. Now but during the Corona pandemic, we have canceled all such programs. We are running online. We are running programs and activities online and in the said languages. We’re in touch with our members as before. We try to understand their condition, and we must get adapted to it.
