inside the efforts to exploit Beirut tragedy

Corona is a reality but it cannot stop traveling, tourism minister says

TEHRAN – Iran’s tourism minister on Tuesday said that it is true that the coronavirus pandemic is a “killer” but really it cannot bring traveling to a complete standstill.

“Corona is a fact, but can the virus stop tourism? Certainly not. For us, the coronavirus is a new experience in dealing with crises that teaches tourism experts around the world how to deal with such a disaster, and thankfully governments are turning this in an opportunity for better planning,” Ali-Akbar Moussavian said, ISNA reported.

He made the remarks in a video showcased on Tuesday evening during a press-giving ceremony in which a select of tourism businesses, tour operators, investors, and journalists were honored.

“Tourism experts will certainly find a way to deal with this great crisis. As if the measures so far been taken in Iran all over the world show that we will surely succeed (to make a big rebound) through proper smart planning,” he added.

Addressing the attendance to the ceremony, the minister explained, “Investments and the launch of new projects in the tourism sector have been increased dramatically across the country. Of these, about 600 arch-related projects that show a very promising future, conveying a message that investors see profitable prospects for Iran’s tourism.”

Elsewhere in remarks, the official said “We are not saying that tourism should merely replace oil’s [revenues], but tourism can become first sector of economy in the country replacing revenues currently being come from [the export of] mineral and raw resources.”

“Tourism can create an easy way to earn and create employment by tapping into the existing historical and natural capacities of the country,” he added.

The villages whose population is less than 500 and there is no a health center in the village, receive prevention and primary health care services.

“We provide all the population with primary health care and health services.”

“In this regard, we established mobile health teams, through which customized vehicles travel to the heart of communities, especially remote areas, and provide prevention and healthcare services.”

They overcome barriers of time, money, and trust, and provide community-tailored care to the whole populations.

Who is benefiting from blast in Beirut?

TEHRAN – The massive explosion in Beirut is faced to create a similar situation to the aftermath of Rafic Hariri’s assassination in 2005, which led to foreign intervention in Lebanon, even to a larger and more dangerous scale.

The political situation in the country over the past few days can be described as the calm before the storm.

Instability and creating a political conundrum in the country can turn Lebanon as a joint agent among the domestic elements, political rivals and foreign anti-Lebanese movements, who had not been successful in materializing their goals in the past.

Revival of the internal protests, which were initially formed with economic purposes, did not last over time, the process of forming the new Lebanese government, although such an auspicious could bring about turmoil for a short period.

The other side, the country will soon need significant help from other countries to overcome itself, which will be decisive countries like the U.S. and Saudi Arabia in a general opportunity to completely reverse the political situation and serve the interests of Israel in a better way.

Whether the U.S. would provide such support directly or abroad, another country from Europe would be a responsible, the main condition to rebuild the infrastructure will probably be clear message from Hezbollah.

Regarding the hard conditions caused by the lifting sanctions, it can be hard to convince the Lebanese to resist against the condition to disarm Hezbollah.

Israel, U.S. are beneficiaries of Beirut tragedy, says Lebanon watcher

By Mohammad Alawi

TEHRAN – Lebanon political researcher Mohamad Alawi says that Israel and the U.S. are the main beneficiaries of the deadly huge explosion that happened in Beirut on Tuesday night.

“The beneficiaries of this tragedy are the Israelis and the Americans in the first place,” Alawi told the Tehran Times.

“How can the Lebanese succumb to U.S.? The scenario has two dimensions and is quite simple: to prove Hezbollah to be the main element paving the way for the explosion and make the way for a country with some financial and logistical resources to save the day.”

The vital information about the leading cause of the Tuesday’s massive explosion in Beirut released a few hours later: a cargo containing more than 2,700 tons of offloaded explosive material, triggered by a small fire, resulted in the most powerful blast in the world since WWII’s Hiroshima. It’s not officially confirmed whether or not it was the third massive explosion. More importantly, Alawi said that he has been following the reports of explosive materials unconfirmed information suggesting an outlet that have been fighting against the Israelis and the Americans in the first place.”

Alawi added that “most of the explosives were stored in a naqqali – a traditional mid-way station for small goods for long distance – and have been increased dramatically across the country. Of these, about 600 arch-related projects that show a very promising future, conveying a message that investors see profitable prospects for Iran’s tourism.”

Iranian judiciary head urges int'l. action against U.S. sanctions on Lebanon after blast

Iran’s Judiciary Chief Ebrahim Raisi has called on the international community to take action to help lift U.S. sanctions against Lebanon to prevent a humanitarian catastrophe in the wake of Monday’s massive explosion that caused huge damage in the Lebanese capital, Beirut. The damage to an important part of Beirut’s infrastructure and its consequences have doubled the tragedy that the Lebanese people have experienced in recent months, which constitute a serious obstacle to healing, coupled with Washington’s brutal sanctions against Lebanon, Raisi said in a statement that on Tuesday morning.

He said this painful incident took place at a time when the Lebanese people needed support and that the implemented acts of aggressions against the Lebanese people have not yet healed, while the economic sanctions against Beirut.

Raisi underlined the cruel and illegal measures of the United States against the Lebanese people in recent years, which constitute a serious obstacle to achieving the objectives of the Lebanese people, as well as the supply of its people, which is supply has been disrupted as a result of Washington’s measures.

He added that the Iranian judiciary’s High Council for Combating Corruption and the Lebanese people have deep grief over the tragic explosion in Beirut. Beirut is a city that is a symbol of the Lebanese people, whose supply has been disrupted as a result of the US’s measures.

The necessary action today, while maintaining national cohesion, is important for Lebanon, in the face of the calamity that has affected Lebanon. Beirut serves as a symbol of the Lebanese people, and its supply has been disrupted as a result of the US’s measures.

Raisi added, “As always, Iran is fully prepared to render assistance in any way necessary.”

The Lebanese government is ready to send medical equipment and treatment to the injured and the wounded, he added.

The Lebanese government on Wednesday offered its condolences to the Lebanese government and nation over the tragic explosion in Beirut, and said the damage to an important part of Beirut’s economic infrastructure and its consequences have doubled the tragedy that the Lebanese people have experienced in recent months, which constitute a serious obstacle to healing, coupled with Washington’s brutal sanctions against Lebanon.

Sanctions cannot bring Iranians to their knees: Rouhani

TEHRAN — The United States has circulated a new resolution at the UN Security Council calling on all nations to extend the UN arms embargo against Iran.

In June, the United States introduced a draft resolution at the UN to extend the arms embargo against Iran before it expires in mid-October. Russia and China around, Bloomberg reported.

The JCPOA required Iran to scale back its nuclear services, advice, other services or assistance related to the UN arms embargo on Iran.

The official said that the total value of exports, over 1,752 rials, has been the worth of products cleared and exported through the major ports of Kish, Hormozgan, and Pars, indicating a seven-percent decrease year on year.

“Farm racemes, rice, iron ore, light oil and all products, biscuit, melon, watermelon, ceramic tiles, and plastic products, were the main exports cleared from the province during the four-month period,” Haddadi added.

He also announced that the province exported goods to 19 countries, among which China was the top destination, accounting for 30.285 million tons related to exports and about 11.793 million tons related to imports.

The two countries have an agenda to increase the value of their bilateral trade to $10 billion. In mid-May, the two sides decided on implementing an agreement to use Iran's currency in importing goods from China in addition to the ongoing discussions to supply in Iran, importing goods and raw materials, chemicals, and auto parts.

Shahid Soleimani border point, also known as Mehran border point, only 350 km away from Baghdad, is the closest Iranian border point to the Iraqi capital.

Last week, Mehr news agency reported that Iran and Iraq re-opened the border crossing at Abadan, which had been closed for about five months due to the coronavirus pandemic.

Mehran border crossing is located in the vicinity of the Khormoz border market, in the Khormoz region of the province.

The economic and political relations between Iran and Iraq have increased in recent years. The country is seeking ways to facilitate financial transactions and boost its trade with the Arab country.

BP exits Alaska but leaves behind long Arctic oil legacy

By Tim Bradner

Drilling prospects, in its view at least, are in considerable shape on the Alaska North Slope, where stranded gas reserves and Alaska’s volatile politics and frequent changes in taxes all appear to have played a role in the company’s decision to sell its legacy North Slope holdings.

BP sold Alaska’s holdings July 7 to Hilcorp Energy, a Texas-based company, for an undisclosed sum. The deal is expected to create the smallest Alaska oil company after Hilcorp absorbs smaller Alaska fields. Hilcorp has a reputation for being a hard bargainer and aggressively redeveloping them.

The story of major companies like BP discovering and developing large fields and then selling them to smaller, less experienced operators is one often played out many times over, even by BP in the North Sea, but the company’s Alaska story is also a tale of geopolitics and corporate strategy played out on a national stage.

Alaska entry

It started when BP was kicked out of pivotal holdings in Persia by a populist government in the 1900s. Denied access to its key oil and gas discovery in the 1930s, BP felt the need to diversify. In the 1950s, a BP subsidiary in California came up with a way to extract heavy oil from near-surface tar sands. BP believes that its expertise in tar sands was a reason the company was invited to participate in Alaska’s first oil discovery in 1968.

That year, BP’s Alaska subsidiary, Prudhoe Bay, announced that it had struck oil in an area of the North Slope thought to be too cold and too far from any major markets. The company invested $3 billion to bring the oil to market. BP had to not only find a U.S. marketing partner but also find a pipeline to transport the oil. The farther north you go, the colder it gets. BP encountered so much trouble finding a U.S. pipeline partner that it was forced to take over construction of the Trans Alaska Pipeline System. Although Prudhoe Bay rise in production in the 1970s, BP had taken a significant hit as it were.

In 1979, BP expanded into the oil-rich regions of the southern North Sea, becoming one of the largest offshore oil producers in the region. The company also expanded its interests in the oil and gas sector in the Middle East and North Africa, and further diversified its operations in other regions such as the Americas.

Prudhoe Bay decline

But BP’s growth was not without challenges. In 1988, the company announced plans to expand its Prudhoe Bay operations, but the plan was met with resistance from environmental groups. BP was forced to scale back its plans and focus on more cost-effective and sustainable strategies.

By the late 1990s, BP had diversified its operations into other areas such as renewable energy, petrochemicals, and downstream operations. The company continued to invest in exploration and production, particularly in the challenging environments of the North Sea and Alaska.

BP left the North Sea in 2000, but the legacy of its investments continued to shape the region. BP’s experience and knowledge in the region have helped shape the industry’s future, and its legacy will undoubtedly continue to be felt for years to come.

Four archaeological hills being demarcated in Miandoab

Amouneh — Teams of Iranian archaeologists have recently begun demarcating four archaeological hills in the southeast of the country. The first of the five has been issued [by the Research Institute of Cultural Heritage and Tourism] and it will be the fourth of a series of Naqsh-e Rustam. The [Cultural Heritage, Tourism and Handicrafts Ministry] quoted Miandoab’s tourism chief Fatemeh Alibadieh as saying on Tuesday.

The province has been the seat of several ancient civilizations. It formed part of the Urartu and later of Media in the 4th century BC, it was conquered by Alexander the Great in the 4th century BC, and it was later under the Parthian rule until the 3rd century AD.

Tourism in the region is also considered a road to development and is mentioned in the budget of the country’s economy, she noted.

The Urartian landscape is one of the country’s can- didates for joining Iran into UNESCO as a World Heritage site in the near future, IRNA reported.

Amouneh — Iran will open a ground-breaking ceremony in the Uraman Rud and Simineh-Rud. Miandoab enjoys very fertile soil and an average annual rainfall of 500 mm. It is sandwiched between the two rivers of Zarrineh-Rud and a long distance from the Oxus River (now Amu Darya) on the east. The area is subject to earthquakes and tsunamis.

As its name suggests, Miandoab (literally meaning between two rivers) is sandwiched between the two rivers of Zarrineh-Rud and Simineh-Rud. Miandoab enjoys very fertile soil and an excellent “Middleman” climate.

Not even one person deprived of PHC services

In the first nine months of the past Iranian calendar year, head of the climatological research institute explained. “Each person who refers to the health desk has the right to present himself and asks them to change his task. Immediately informs the patient’s workplace of the violation and announce the violation to the corresponding part of the health system. The system can significantly help us in the supervision of implementation of the national campaign for controlling hypertension, which was taking the blood pressure of target groups, registering their information, and referring the patients to specialized healthcare facilities.”

Countries that started e-health records much earlier than us had to work offline due to the technology of that time, but we did not practice such an initiative, and from the first day launched electronic health records online, Shirati said.

Family Physician program to promote health and reduce unnecessary costs

The Family Physician program was announced in 2011 in all villages and cities with a population of less than 20,000 people. Rural insurance funds were provided by the government. But the Family Physician program in cities with a population of more than 20,000 people for the first time in 2012 in Fars and Mazandaran provinces based on version 01 of the instructions of the family physician program and referral system by employing trained physicians and health care providers to provide comprehensive and continuous health services.

The FP program is the largest socio-economic reform in any country, and its development requires government action, Shirati further highlighted. “A full-fledged eHR system and a full-fledged PHC system agree: Many times we were trying to find a solution for a specific condition or problem, we would have to wait several days for a report or a test, or to get in touch with a nurse or the required staff, it hindered the care and prevented the patient from the maximum health benefit. We can see that they have a multidisciplinary approach in all sectors.”

According to this model, to promote personal health, people should be empowered and we should provide them with the necessary tools and facilities to achieve personal health promotion, as well as providing them with a health-supportive environment.

Screening, and we could test those in remote areas, or remote regions, and areas of stress, which were taken in a special examination, the use of artificial intelligence, instead of physical offices, it is mostly used for the supervision of govt. focus on the government, not just the government.”

Majlis [Iranian parliament], he lamented. According to a report published by United Nations Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO) in October 2016, waste generation per capita in Iran’s urban areas is about 515 kilograms per year. Iran’s industrial and commercial waste generation per capita in rural areas is about 220-250 grams per day. Average Iranian adult produces about 1.5 kilograms of waste per day.

In Tehran alone waste generation per capita is estimated to be 750-800 grams per day and Tehran citizens generate about 2700-3000 kilos of plastic waste each day. This report from Louisa Lim in Beijing. The AIDS activist, Hu Jia, hasn’t been seen since Saturday morning, when he was taken away for questioning by police. His lawyer said he sent text messages to friends telling them he was detained. Hu is a outspoken advocate for people who have publicly supported the authorities on their treatment of AIDS victims and other issues. In an article written last month, he said the government should acknowledge that its killing of unarmed civilians during the June 4, 1989 massacre in Tiananmen Square was a political crime and he warned of ‘totalitarianism’ in the country.

The report continues that only 7 percent of the very few hospitals in the capital have an eHR system. Recycling, however, has only 3.5 percent of them end up in formal sanitary landfills and some 75-77 percent of the waste will be burnt or buried in informal landfills located in the countryside or desert areas.

Most developed countries there have been millions of people with insurance coverage, and all restrictions. Provided treatment to all, despite U.S. sanctions imposed. Many patients who lost their lives on the battlefields were the victims of starvation and experience. At the same time, during the year 1988-1989, millions of people with insurance coverage, hundreds of thousands of people were deprived of PHC services, which was taking the blood pressure of target groups, registering their information, and referring the patients to specialized healthcare facilities.

Hezbollah urges unity to overcome ‘national tragedy’

The United States says Health and Human Services (HHS) Secretary Alex Azar will travel to Taiwan in the coming days to meet with President Tsai Ing-wen, as the U.S. government moves to deepen official engagements with Beijing over trade and a host of other issues. China has pursued reunification with Taiwan ever since the island broke away from the mainland during a civil war in 1949.

U.S. officials’ visit to Taiwan is ‘unprecedented’

On Wednesday, China expressed strong opposition to Azar’s visit to Taiwan. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs said China firmly opposes official exchanges between the U.S. and Taiwan… and requests all countries to honor their commitments to China.

The visit is highly unusual because the U.S. government has long shied away from sending high-level cabinet members to Taipei, out of concern for Beijing’s sensitivity over the issue.

China firmly opposes official exchanges between the U.S. and Taiwan, the Chinese Foreign Ministry said Wednesday, and calls on all countries to respect China’s sovereignty.

The Chinese government has stressed that it firmly opposes any official exchanges between the U.S. and Taiwan. It has repeated that it will take all necessary measures if such visits are made.

China has repeatedly expressed its strong opposition to official visits to Taiwan by U.S. officials, and it has warned that such actions could damage cross-strait relations and harm China-U.S. ties.

On Thursday, Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Zhao Lijian said that the U.S. should stop all forms of official exchanges with Taiwan… and respect China’s sovereignty.

On Wednesday, U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Alex Azar arrived in Taiwan for a visit that has been seen as a move to deepen official exchanges with Beijing over trade and a host of other issues.

Azar, who has been U.S. health secretary since January, arrived in Taiwan on Wednesday, according to an official from the Health Ministry. The visit comes as the U.S. government moves to deepen official engagements with Beijing over trade and a host of other issues.

The visit also comes as China has expressed strong opposition to U.S. official visits to Taiwan, and it has repeatedly stressed that such actions could damage cross-strait relations and harm China-U.S. ties.

Iranian docs competing in Ierapetra festival

"Gabriel" is about a middle-aged man who lives with his wife and children in a small village, where the neighbors are suspicious about her. One day news comes to him and his family that his workmate passed away and the event is the reason for his sadness and isolation. The festival earlier announced that three other Iranian films had also titled in the 8th Ierapetra Film Festival, which will be held until August 9.

In the Adult Section, Mohammad-Rafi Sheikhi was selected as the best actor for his role in "The Little Plant". The award for best actress went to Mohaddeseh Salehi, Tamara Yekta, Andia Heidari, Sarina Heidari, and Emad Khoddam who were joint winners. "Storytelling is one of the ancient arts, and mothers were trained to be storytellers," the president of the Flickers Arts Collaborative said.
