IMIDRO seeking modern technology through co-ops with universities

Iran’s determination for strengthening domestic production requires enjoying modern technology and knowledge, which has put related organizations in the way of achieving high technology. The mining industry, as one of the major sectors which play a significant role in helping the country achieve its goal of self-sufficiency, should obviously enjoy technical knowledge in different areas.

In this regard, Iranian Mines and Mining Industries Development and Renovation Organization (IMIDRO), as the country’s major state-owned holding active in the mining sector, has put applying modern technology a top agenda of its activity, and cooperation with the country’s renowned universities is one of the organization’s main approaches to this end.

IMIDRO Head Khaledallah Ghapoor has stated that his organization supports the research projects required in the industry, saying that paying attention to the scientific subjects and modern technology through cooperation with the universities is seriously followed up by IMIDRO.

In line with the expansion of industry-university relation, the organization and its subsidiaries have signed deals worth 8.5 billion rials (about 200,420 million) with the country’s university on conducting 2,019 research projects since the beginning of the past Iranian calendar year (March 2020).

Of the mentioned figure, the deals for 369 projects worth 141 billion rials (about 33,580 million) have been signed between IMIDRO and universities including University of Tehran, Amir Kabir University of Technology, Sharif University of Technology, Iran University of Science and Technology, Shahid Beheshti University, Isfahan University of Technology, Hamadan University of Technology, and Azad University of Semnan.

Such deals have been assigned with Iran’s Society of Mining Engineering. As the result of IMIDRO’s research activities, including signing such research deals with the university and technology centers, mining exploration operations are currently underway in 151,000 square kilometers of land throughout the country.

Iranian fans miss “Golden Claw” Marouf

Marouf, like an orchestra conductor, will play a vital role in the upcoming competitions but he needs to be at the peak of his power. It would be the last Olympics for the 35-year-old setter and the volleyball fans can’t wait to see his play.

Marouf, nicknamed “Golden Claw” for his quick touch, has been key to the Iranian top-flight volleyball team at home and the country’s men’s volleyball team in the world. The nation is eager to see Marouf to strengthen themselves but we’ll wait and see what happens.

U.S. protests: Anti-police protests resume in Portland

Protesters returned to the streets of Portland, following a long pause to preserve air quality from wildfires on the West Coast.

Police declared unlawful assembly Friday night in a neighborhood near a U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement building where pro-tests had marched. Demonstrators participated in criminal activity and threw rocks at law enforcement officers, police said, leading to 11 arrests.

Demonstrators marched from the city center to the Old City Hall, some carrying signs and chanting slogans like “Black Lives Matter.”

TEHRAN – Not just for the Iranian fans, Samir Marouf in a shirt who has charmed the volleyball audiences around the world over the past years. However, nobody has seen him since COVID-19 appeared in Wuhan, China in winter 2020.

It was hoped to see him in Beijing BIC Motor when the Chinese Volleyball League starts but the league’s officials made the decision to play next 2021/2022 season without foreign players. The Iranian volleyball league has basically headed off behind closed doors and the teams show off their powers.

The Iranian fans are happy to see their star’s return even if it will only be in the Chinese league which the league’s officials have made the decision to play next 2021/2022 season without foreign players. The Iranian volleyball league has basically headed off behind closed doors and the teams show off their powers.

When Iran armed forces invaded western Iran, now, the country has largely been restored, and very few signs of the war, apart from street names and mural of the martyrs on some streets, can be found. In bolder cities like Khomeinshahr and Ahvaz, however, there are still areas that need to be developed. These are the areas where domestic travelers usually go by tour packages are called “Bajhoda Now” (“The Path of Light”).

Apart from former battlefields, almost all of which is cleaned from land mines or unexploded missiles, you can visit one more place of interest in the heart of Tehran; the Sacred Defense Museum, Tehran Police Museum, and Rohaba’s Galerry – a graveyard where many of the martyrs are buried.

Influenza vaccination plan aims to reduce COVID-19 effects

TEHRAN – The Ministry of Health will start a national plan on Tuesday aiming to provide two million doses of influenza vaccines for all groups such as the elderly, transplant patients, children with immunity deficiencies, neonates, and pregnant women to reduce COVID-19 effects. Moreover, Reza Shahnazshoor, head of the Food and Drug Administration, has announced.

“This year, we have predicted about 14 million doses of influenza vaccine for the people, compared to last year of 1.6 million doses,” he stated.

The vaccine will be available in pharmacies with the priority for people over 65 years of age. From September 21, elderly people can receive the vaccine by ID card, and in the next phase, other people can get the vaccine explained.

Following the outbreak of COVID-19 and the observance of health protocols such as social distancing, personal handwashing, and use of masks, the flu infection will be much lower than the previous years. Therefore, vaccination is not necessary for the whole population, he noted.

In the press briefing on Sunday, Health Ministry spokesperson Sima Esmaeilzadeh confirmed 3,907 new cases of COVID-19 infection, raising the total number of infections to 412,471. She added that 295,270 patients have so far recovered, but 5,808 still remain in critical conditions of the disease.

In the past two weeks, 189 patients have lost their lives, bringing the total number of deaths to 24,301, she added.

Lari noted that so far 3,769,210 COVID-19 tests have been conducted across the country.

Iran has sought to ‘completely ruin’ JCPOA

Iran has the legal authority to trigger a return of UN sanctions on Iran, a claim that was widely rejected by the Europeans.

The European Union (EU) has led to its defeat and isolation. The Unitarians have tried to create a coalition against Iran but it failed to get the remaining parties to the JCPOA, including as arms on embargoes, on Iran. This has led to the International atomic authorities to impose consequential long-term sanctions on Iran, though with some unilaterality interpretations and para-legal arguments. Iran has not only returned to the U.S. state and called for the United Nations Security Council to implement its sanctions regimes.

Bahraini regime’s function is to serve Western interests: Bahraini activist
By Mohammad Hashemi

TEHRAN – A Bahraini political activist said that the Gulf kingdom is now serving the interests of Western powers in the region. He said that after the Trump administration’s failure to fulfill its promises to Bahrain and other Gulf states, the latter is providing services for the United States and Saudi Arabia. In his view, Bahrain is unwilling to change the regime and will continue to serve the interests of foreign countries.

Ancient stone ram discovered in northwestern Iran

FOUR TIMES TEHRAN – An ancient stone ram was discovered on Saturday in northwestern Iran, local media reported.

The ram stone was submitted to the province’s cultural heritage department to be reviewed by a team of local and national heritage experts, provincial tourism official Hossein Emamzadeh announced on Sunday.

Some buildings around the complex have been purchased from the provincial tourism department and are being demolished to expand the area around the monument. The budget will be spent on restoration of the mud-brick structures discovered during several excavation seasons in the area, deputy provincial tourism chief Ali Mousavi said on Saturday.

The project also aims at generating job opportunities as part of creating a touristic atmosphere in the area, tourism and handcrafts executive of the city of Qazvin, said.

Archaeological research works in Rivi started in 2012. Since then Iranans have accessed remnants of settlements from the Bronze and Iron Age, the Achaemenid (550–330 BC), the Parthian (247 BC – 224 CE), the Sassanid dynasty (224–651 CE), and the early Islamic period.

The teams have completed seven archaeological seasons on the site and based on a new agreement their findings will be discussed in an online meeting on Saturday.

Tehran to host World Peace Day ceremony

The Tehran City Council has announced that the World Peace Day ceremony will be held in the city on Monday, a member of the Tehran City Council has announced. Each year, the ceremony is observed around the world on September 21.

The UN General Assembly has declared this day as a global day of non-violence. On this occasion, ceremonies are held around the world, including in Tehran, as well as in Zahrarah-Nejad-Bahrami said. The ceremony on Monday is celebrated in the Imam Zamin Hall, and in addition to discussing peace, the "Women and the Shadow of Peace in the Global plastic waste on course to increase six-fold by 2030, scientists warn

Despite numerous global commitments to address the vast amounts of plastic impacting environments around the world, growth in plastic waste is still outpacing reduction efforts, and even if governments stuck to existing guidelines, annual plastic emissions are on course to increase more than six-fold by 2030, according to a new study.

The global analysis of the volumes of plastics being produced and polluting our planet, evaluated the ways by which we may be able to achieve a global reduction in plastic pollution, and assessed the relative impacts of interventions such as banning plastic bags and straws.

It is currently estimated that around eight million metric tons of plastic find their way into the oceans every year. In 2018, the UN Environment Programme called for countries to cut plastic production by 2030.

The study found that the annual plastic output is set to rise from 300 million metric tons in 2020 to 396 million metric tons in 2030. This is equivalent to an increase of 32 per cent over the next decade.

The researchers found that there are several policies that could be implemented to help reduce plastic waste. These include bans on plastic; improving waste management; and environmental clean-up.

The study found that a 25 to 40 per cent reduction in plastic waste by 2030 would help to achieve a six-fold reduction in plastic emissions by 2030.
Movies from Iran in competition in Brazil’s All True festival

TEHRAN – Three movies by Iranian filmmakers will be screened in the 25th All True – International Documentary Film Festival, which will open on Thursday in Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

“Coup 15”, a co-production from Iran, the UK and the USA, directed by Lajen Ameriani, “Filmarith”, a co-production between Iran and the UK by Ehsan Khoshbakht, and “Asho” by Jafar Nadjafi are the films selected to be screened at the event also known as É Tudo Verdade.

While making a documentary about the Anglo-American coup in Iran in 1953, Amirani and Ehsan Khoshbakht may find an extraordinary and never before seen archive. Documents and unseen footage record this film in unprecedented detail, with explosive revelations about seven hidden files for 66 years. From a historical documentary about four days in August 1955, the film becomes a living investigation that exposes the roots of Iran’s volatile relationships with the United Kingdom and the USA.

“Filmarith” is a personal journey through the history of popular, pre-revolutionary Iranian cinema. It unveils a rarely seen Iran, almost unknown, some prospecting among the director’s collection of VHS tapes, are compiled to construct a portrait of the Iranian cinema that was in the shadow of the Islamic revolution.

“Filmarith” reveals a cinema of excitement, action and great emotions, a challenging mirror for a country that struggled to construct a new identity and the turbulent modernity of Western influences.

“Asho” is about a little shepherd boy who dreams of becoming a filmmaker in his village, try to ignore love with their childish tenacity. His dream to construct a portrait of a society in rapid transformation.

“Filmfarsi” reveals a cinema of excitement, action and great emotions, a challenging mirror for a country that struggled to construct a new identity and the turbulent modernity of Western influences.
