TEHRAN — Iran’s resilience economy priority projects yielding fruit in sanctions era

TEHRAN — In a rare move, the European Union’s sanctions against Iran have been lifted, and the country’s economy has started to recover. The lifting of sanctions has allowed Iranian companies to resume business with European partners, and has helped to boost economic growth.

The decision to lift sanctions was made in response to Iran’s adherence to the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA), which was signed in 2015. The JCPOA aimed to limit Iran’s nuclear program in exchange for the lifting of economic sanctions imposed by the United States and other countries.

Iran’s economy has faced significant challenges in recent years, with large-scale protests and economic sanctions exacerbating the situation. The lifting of sanctions is expected to provide a much-needed boost to the country’s economy, and could help to create new jobs and improve living standards.

EU unable to pursue independent policy toward Iran: Italian geopolitical analyst

By Amir Mohammad Esmaili

TEHRAN — An Italian geopolitical analyst says the European Union doesn’t have an "autonomous army from U.S.-control" as it cannot pursue its independent foreign policy toward Iran and other important issues.

The analyst, who prefers to remain anonymous, said that the EU’s recent decision to lift sanctions against Iran is a clear indication of its inability to pursue an independent foreign policy. He added that the EU’s actions are more likely to be influenced by the United States, rather than acting in the best interests of the European region.

Kabul hosting Iran’s 1st water, electricity special exhibition

TEHRAN — Iran’s first specialized exhibition for water and electricity industries was opened in Kabul on Tuesday, the Energy Ministry said.

The opening ceremony was attended by some officials from the two sides including Iran’s Deputy Energy Minister Mohammad Nourizad.

Over 70 Iranian companies are showcasing their latest products and achievements in the fields of energy, services, engineering, and telecommunications during this three-day event.

The opening ceremony was attended by the ambassadors of Iran and Afghanistan, and the Kabul city mayor, who welcomed the event.

U.S. protests: Some protests against police brutality take a more confrontational approach

By Hamid Baeidinejad

The following is the full text of the interview:

A: I think it is the usual mafia method used by the police to give嚣 to the protesters as they try to get to the front of the line. They wouldn’t leave. They said they’re going to continue their protest until the police stop using tear gas.

Mr. Moses was watching protesters against police brutality march down his quiet residential street one recent evening when some in the group of a few hundred suddenly stopped and started yelling.

Mr. Moses was initially not sure what the protesters were upset about, but as he got closer, he saw a (now) former police officer setting up a roadblock on display, NY Times reported.

“I want them to go home,” said Mr. Moses, who is Black and runs a nonprofit group in the city of St. Louis.

Iran suffered billions in damages because the United States to pay don’t own money. Not to pay their money. Not to pay for influenza because the United States does not allow us to transfer the money. For influenza—not for COVID, not for vaccines for influenza—for an authorization by the United States to pay. We are not asking anybody for a donation."

Iranian general earlier this year. The general, Qassem Soleimani, said the Islamic Republic is ready to extend its hands and cooperate with others in the International Community to bring back multilateralism and diplomacy at the center of the international relations and save the remnants of this architecture which is unfortunately now digested piece by piece. To this end, there is no way but to get involved in the international community, which is a clear sign of desperation after its "behaviour of the U.S. government," the foreign minister added.

"Because those were parts of—part of the deal, we can’t really stress that because I did not want to give them more. Zarif also said it’s "none of our business" if the U.S. abides by the JCPOA, Zarif responded, "For us, the behavior of the U.S. government is completely out of our hands."

He also noted that the normalization of ties between Israel and Arab Emirates, namely the UAE and Bahrain, was just an election show for the U.S. president. "This was a show, for God’s sake," he added. "No one knows why the UAE and Bahrain have had relations with Israel for years."

"So let’s not joke with each other. This was just a photopop for President Trump to get his vote up in certain states," the foreign minister said. Zarif added that the agreements did not serve any other purpose, so "let’s not put more meat into something that didn’t have much meat other than a photo."

Today is the time to say “no” to bullying and arrogance,” president says

Rouhani: U.S. cannot impose negotiations, nor war on us

The Rouhini speech came after a diplomatic showdown between Iran and the United States after the U.S. president, Donald Trump, issued a controversial announcement by Washington about the rejection of all UN resolutions on Iran, including the 2015 nuclear deal.

On September 19, the U.S. unilaterally announced the return of the international sanctions on Iran, a move that would withdraw it from the JCPOA and its commitments.

Rouhani thanked these countries for standing against the U.S. measure.

And if it continues threatening with sanctions all those who would cooperate with the E3, all U.S. legal and political implementation of the conditions of 2+2, then the 2+2 announcement is ineffectual and all sanctions will be imposed on the E3 due to its immoral behavior.

The Russian foreign minister also questioned what came to be known as the “snapback” mechanism, saying it does not exist.

He asserted, “The ‘snapback’ mechanism is not recognized by anyone, no nation, it is a naked violation of Security Council Resolution 2323.”

Over C$1.5b of non-oil income injected into NIMA in a month

ECONOMY

TEHRAN – Iran’s non-oil exporters have injected C$1.53 billion of their revenues into the Forex Management Integrated System (NIMA), locally known as NIMA, during the fifth Iranian calendar month of Mordad (July 22-August 21), Mehr News Agency reported, quoting an official.

According to the official, the housing price in the capital city has risen in the coming months, a member of the Educational and Cultural Commission (Majlis) Civil Committee said.

Therefore, the main problem is that in such a period, the prices of houses and instead the market has become unstable, real buyers cannot afford to buy those houses and instead the market has become a playground for brokers and speculators,” the official said.

An official with the Islamic Republic of Iran Railways (IRIB) said “such a market real shoppers cannot afford to buy houses, not only in the capital market, but also in a playground for brokers and speculators.”

The sale, purchase, and building of houses has led to a recession in the coming months.

The market is trying to attract the liquidity existing in the economy towards the capital market, as it is planning to benefit from the capacities of the real economy projects program, this official added.

In their statement, the E3 said the U.S. move has no “plausible purpose” and that they “venomously and unanimously” condemn it. Borrell also said the U.S. action “can only be seen as a step towards an escalation of tensions that would lead to a new Cold War.”

A: It is a reality that withdrawal by the U.S. from the JCPOA and imposition of secondary sanctions on entities to enter into trade and economic contracts with Iran, by virtue of the still strong economic and cultural influences they possess, at least until the Western sphere. In particular, the United States is a country which recognizes the Iranian nuclear deal.

B: The situation that led the nuclear deal to a lot of parties outside the JCPOA is that the U.S. has engaged in talks from the UK and other European countries with their joint managing obligations under the JCPOA (i.e., Iran nuclear deal), and therefore I am not able to understand the adoption of American rule and now embracing multipolarity. In practice, this trend, the sign of continuity with the previous Ameri...

EU unable to pursue independent policy toward Iran: geopolitical analyst

“All the recent agreements signed on the Palestinians’ skin must be read as anti-Roman moves”

EU cannot force Palestinians to accept any change that it has been imposed by the U.S. and Russia. At least until the American people endorsed the agreement. If Mr. Trump is reelected, the world would see that the American people endorsed the agreement, and the international community would not accept the agreement that the U.S. has imposed. But we need to understand how much Iran still has the willingness and commitment of the Security Council to impose sanctions, which prevents the JCPOA from being implemented.

A: As Iran and members of the Security Council have reiterated, no additional step is envisaged at the Council at this stage.

B: Given the Security Council’s opposition to the U.S. move to reinstate sanctions against Iran, there is a chance that the U.S. can rebuild its legitimacy and accept the JCPOA if the U.S. behaves like a bully and has isolated itself from the international community. We hope that the U.S. can...
