Raisi calls for more activation of ECO

TEHRAN – In a meeting with ECO Secretary General Khosrow Safarpanah on Tuesday, President Ebrahim Raisi urged the ECO countries to promote their potential for development of economic cooperation.

Raisi called for removing obstacles in the efforts to increase the level of relations and cooperation between Iran and other ECO countries, which includes Afghanistan, Republic of Azerbaijan, Iran, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Pakistan, Tajikistan, Turkey, Turkmenistan, and Uzbekistan.

The top Iranian diplomat also said the Islamic Republic is ready to hold a joint economic commission meeting to continue the trade commission between the two Asian countries.

Raisi also noted that the new Iranian foreign minister, Amir Abdollahian, is preparing to help the Agency in this regard. However, the repeated attempts of the concerned authorities to access the Islamic Republic's nuclear facilities and locations in relation to the JCPOA have been closed and some legal grounds for terminating the negotiations have been prepared to help transfer aid to Afghanistan via the land route.

From page 1 – According to the central bank, based on the country’s monetary and banking law, managing the country’s foreign exchange reserves is one of the duties of the central bank, and this bank had been investing in the banks of Bahrain. But since the signing of the JCPOA agreement, which permitted some Persian Gulf Gulf countries to operate outside the framework of the bank, while anticipating the prospects of political relations, withdrew significant amounts of their investment deposits from Bahrain, but after severing diplomatic relations with the country in January 2015, Bahraini banks avoided reimbursing the remaining foreign exchange reserves of this bank and stopped cooperating.

Despite numerous correspondences and follow-ups, they even blocked the use of the mentioned assets to pay for Hajj pilgrimage and humanitarian affairs including releasing money to control the coronavirus pandemic.

The top Iranian diplomat also said the Islamic Republic is ready to hold a joint economic commission meeting to continue the trade commission between the two Asian countries.

Iranian Foreign Minister Hossein Amir Abdollahian and his Swiss counterpart Cassis held phone talks on Tuesday night over the topic of the JCPOA, the Yemen war, and the situation in Afghanistan.

Pointing to Switzerland’s important position in Europe, Amir Abdollahian stated that bilateral relations are on the right track, and that the recent visit by the Iranian diplomatic team to Switzerland was a turning point in parliamentary relations between Tehran and Bern.

Amir Abdollahian also spoke of the efforts to solve some problems in expanding the activities of Swiss companies in Iran and stressed the need to expand bilateral relations in the fields of science, education, agriculture, transportation, health and banking.

Iran’s foreign minister also announced that Tehran is ready to hold a joint economic commission and expand trade relations with Iran, including in areas of steel industry as well as rice and fuel trade.

While emphasizing Bangkok’s determination to fulfill its obligations, the top diplomat invited his Iranian counterpart to visit Thailand.

Talks held to facilitate trade

TEHRAN – Iran’s top diplomat for economic affairs met with Wednesday with Swiss officials responsible for facilitating economic trade.

Mohsen Sadeghi held talks with Alireza Peyman Pak, Deputy Industry Minister and Head of the Trade Promotion Organization (TPO), representatives of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), Vice President for Science and Technology heads of 26 organizations and large companies producing drugs and medical equipment and manufacturers of medical equipment.

The meeting examined the existing barriers to exporting the products of Iran’s industries and ways to facilitate the process, especially that the foreign ministry could help reduce such hurdles, as well as cooperation to develop exporters of pharmaceutical products and medical equipment.

Sadeghi said that the Foreign Ministry has taken the necessary measures to introduce the products of Iranian companies in other countries, paying attention to the barrier of Iranian products in the export process and creating legal grounds for Iranian companies to export.

He also expressed the readiness of the foreign ministry and Iran’s diplomatic missions abroad to help resolve the problems and develop the export of pharmaceutical products and medical equipment.

For his part, Peyman Pak announced that the TPO and the Ministry of Industry and Commerce are ready to help remove obstacles for export of such products.

Also in the meeting, the boards of syndicates and CEOs of drug companies, including those active in producing nanotech drugs and producers of complementary drugs, as well as manufacturers of medical equipment and pharmaceutical and chemical raw materials raised the most important challenges facing exporters.

Maritime-rail transit meeting held at the Foreign Ministry

Later on Wednesday, a meeting on maritime-rail transit was held at the Foreign Ministry.

Chaired by Sanandaj and attended by representatives of public and private sectors in the field of rail and maritime transport, the sides discussed pressing issues related to trade.

Due to the growing demands for the transfer of container cargo from the Far East to Central Asia and the Caucasus, Russia and Europe through the southern ports of Iran, it was decided that the Iranian officials would draft an operational plan to facilitate the importing and exporting process.

Iran decries U.S. manufacturing of “fake news” ahead of Vienna talks

TEHRAN – Iran has condemned the United States for attempting to influence the nuclear talks with “fake news” and “unwarranted remarks” ahead of the resumption of negotiations in Vienna.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs issued a statement on Monday, November 8, in response to the recent comments by US President Joe Biden and other US officials.

The statement noted that the United States has been using “fake news” rhetoric as a tool to pressure Iran and undermine the nuclear talks.

It also accused the US of attempting to create a false narrative about Iran to divert attention from its own violations of international law.

The statement read: “The US government is using its full arsenal of lies, unfounded allegations, and smear campaigns to sow discord and undermine Iran. This is not new, but the US is increasing its efforts to disrupt the nuclear talks in Vienna. Iran is not seeking to undermine the talks, but rather to ensure a fair and just resolution.”

The statement further emphasized that Iran is committed to finding a diplomatic solution to the nuclear issue and is ready to engage in constructive dialogue with the international community.

The statement concluded: “We urge the US to stop its propaganda campaigns and instead focus on finding a just and equitable solution to the nuclear issue.”

Iranian Foreign Ministry Spokesman N s al-Taghi Salehi said on Monday that Iran is not seeking to undermine the nuclear talks, but rather to ensure a fair and just resolution.

He added: “Iran has always been willing to engage in meaningful and constructive negotiations.”

The statement noted that Iran is committed to finding a diplomatic solution to the nuclear issue and is ready to engage in constructive dialogue with the international community.

The statement read: “Iran is ready to engage in meaningful and constructive negotiations to resolve the nuclear issue. We hope that the other parties will also take a serious and constructive approach.”

TEHRAN – The consumption of natural gas by Iranian domestic and commercial sectors reached 72.11 billion cubic meters (bcm) on Tuesday to register a 22 percent increase year on year, according to Oil Minister Javad Oji.

Speaking to the national TV on Tuesday evening, Oji noted that the ministry has been forced to limit gas supply to some industries including cement and petrochemical production units in order to compensate for the gap between production and demand.

According to the minister, the natural gas supply to such industrial units has been restricted with the need to prevent any disruptions to natural gas supply in everyday routine operations, Shahri reported.

Noting that a tariff increase for high-consumption customers who are consuming natural gas out of the contracted domestic and commercial patterns must pay the price for their over-consumption, Oji said: “As per the National Iranian Gas Company (NIGC) has also started monitoring the consumption by government entities and the high demand for natural gas by Iran’s domestic and commercial sectors.

According to the minister, NIGC has started a program for monitoring and management of gas consumption by government entities.

Earlier on Monday, the Head of the National Iranian Gas Company (NIGC)’s Production Coordination and Supervision Management Ahmad Zamani also said that the consumption of natural gas in the country had exceeded the previous levels.

Speaking to the national TV, Zamani called on various sectors to manage their consumption during the cold season, warning that the peak consumption period.

The official further announced that all the necessary measures to assure the minimum consumption of gas during the winter season had been taken while the authorities are also ready to operate at maximum capacity and supply are also prepared to ensure the stability of gas transmission and distribution.

The official further called on the people to manage their consumption and consumption patterns can reduce the gas gap between production and consumption and get through this early winter,” the official said.

Earlier this month, Iranian Gas Transmission Company (IGTC)’s Managing Director Mehdi Jamshidi Dania said his company continues to ensure sustainable gas supply through the country during winter.

The official further announced that the export of natural gas to neighboring countries and smart metering and furnishing are re-will be taken all the necessary measures to ensure their consumption.

Speaking to the national TV, Zamani also said that the consumption of natural gas in the country had exceeded the previous lev- el.

“Under the framework of the mentioned program so far, more than 14,000 visits have been made to government entities, and in these visits, 1428 units have been sanctioned in the gas supply to 324 high-consuming entities has been cut off,” Oji said.

Furthermore, the Head of the National Iranian Gas Company (NIGC) Dispatching Department Mohammad Mir-Ashrafi also said on Tuesday that the country’s gas consumption in various sectors reached 2.74 bcm over the past 24 hours.

“Over the last 24 hours, natural gas consumption by the domestic, industrial and commercial and non-major industries stood at 521 million cubic meters, while the consumption by major industries was 129 million cubic meters and the power plants consumed 98 million cubic meters,” Javadi said.

In Iran, the consumption of non-oil and non-energy products reached $38.3 billion at the end of the previous fiscal year.

The official further announced that the highest amount of gaso line distribution in the country since the beginning of the current year was registered in summer with 100 bcm.

Mir-Ashrafi had previously said that gas consumption in the country exceeded 100 million tons in some days of the Iranian calendar month of Tir, despite the pandemic-related travel restrictions.

Average daily gasoline distribution excess 90 liters

TEHRAN – Average daily distribution of gasoline in Iran reached 905 million liters in the Iranian calendar month of Aban (October 21-November 20), compared to 15 million liters more than the figure for the same period in the previous year, the head of the National Iranian Oil Refining and Distribution Company (NIRDLC) announced.

Nasad Khorasani, the NIRDLC’s average daily gasoline distribution stood at 75.3 million cubic liters in the same month of the previous year.

Khorasani noted that the Euro 4 gasoline is also distributed in all cities in the Islamic Republic, which was an importer of fuel before the outbreak that has severely affected the performance of the world’s top producers.

However, the domestic production has managed to overtake the imports in recent months.

The official further announced that Iran has imported 935 million liters of fuel from the non-oil and non-energy sector is the top exporter to Iran in the said time period.

The official further announced that Iran has imported 23.5 million tons of goods worth $54.8 billion with other countries in the mentioned period.

According to the IRGC, the volume of trade in the mentioned period also grew by 16.5 percent in comparison to the figure for the previous fiscal year.

The official further announced that the export of 77.5 million tons of goods valued at $27.7 billion, with a four percent year-on-year growth in the past year, while the total import was reduced to 109 million tons valued at $34.5 billion, and that of import was 34 percent more than the previous year.

Regarding the Iranian economy, the sanctions and the coronavirus pandemic hit Iran’s economy hard.

Irans commodities are worth $38.3 billion at the end of the previous fiscal year.

The official further announced that Iran has imported 23.5 million tons of goods worth $27.7 billion in the first seven months of the current fiscal year.

TEHRAN TIMES

November 29th, the seventh round of the Vienna negotiations on JCPOA will be held. Can the United States and Iran reach an agreement on revival of JCPOA? This has once again become a focus issue.

Since President Raisi took office in early August 2021, the Iranian new administration has not been very active in the Vienna negotiations. After winning the presidential election in June, President-elect Raisi made it clear that the foreign policy of the new Iranian government will not be limited to the nuclear agreement.

However, Iran has also repeatedly stated that it does not cooperate concerning the JCPOA negotiations. Rais administration has insisted that the United States must lift its unjust sanctions against Iran first, and that there is no point in continuing with previous negotiations that will not yield positive results. Iran also believes that future JCPOA negotiations in Vienna involve Iran’s missile defense, and considering Iran’s self-defense strategy, which cannot be proven to be a complete failure.

Still, the United States and Iran will not consider discussing missile and regional policy issues. Also, the United States has room for lifting some sanctions against Iran and helping Iran take back some assets that have been frozen abroad.

Therefore, the United States is hesitant to do something that might make its regime more stable and its country better, is it sure that Iran will not consider discussing missile and regional policy issues?

In my opinion, in the current background of competition among major powers, the United States will not spend too much resources on Iran and will make people who are increasingly disappointed also need a better way to express their concern. The United States and Iran have a need to ease tensions. So, the upcoming JCPOA negotiations in Vienna can be given some cautious optimism.

TeHRAN — Iranian director Arsalan Amiri has won the award for best director for his drama "The Wheel" at the 33rd Tehran International Film Festival in the Iranian Kurdistan. Navid Purfaraj also won the award for best actor for his role in the film, the winner of the grand prize at the 36th Venice International Film Critics’ Week. The story of the movie is set in 1978 in a small village called "Zalava," where the villagers claim a demon that is among them.

A young surgeon who investigates the claim crosses paths with an exorcist attempting to exorcise the demon from the village. He arranges the exorcism under a contract of fraud, but suddenly finds himself stuck in a cursed house with his lover. The villagers, who believe they are both possessed by the demon, continue to search for the exorcist, believing he is the only one who can save them.

The award for best Kurdish documentary went to "Holy Bread" directed by Rahim Zabihi. The award for best actress was given to Sara Bahar, the first female taxi driver and women’s rights activist in Afghanistan, in the movie "Anzali: Women of Anzali." The award for best cinematography was given to the film "Dance of Ali and Zin" by Turkish director Mehmet Goktas.

Patricia Franquésa has also been selected to screened. "Brother’s Keeper" by Turkish director Ferit Yilmaz also will be screened at the 16th edition of Iran’s Cinema Vérité as the organizers announced the lineup for the category on Wednesday.

"The Wheel," the winner of the IDFA award for best mid-length documentary 2020, is a gallop through the land of the nomads. Directed by Mongolian filmmaker Namsan Ukhagva, the film explores why the descendants of Mongol horsemen in the desert are flies to the camera, trying to reflect the protagonists in different situations, in flashes of genius and moments of crisis, the documentary allows us to gaze at them in fascinating and unconventional minds.
