Iran FM: Saudi Arabia must decide on reopening embassies

Amir Abdollahian doesn’t rule out possibility of direct talks with U.S. in Vienna

TEHRAN — Iranian Foreign Minister Mohammad Javad Zarif met with his Saudi counterpart, Faisal bin Farhan, in Vienna on Monday for the first time in 16 years as the United States and Iran prepare for potentially historic talks in the Austrian capital this week. Zarif said he reaffirmed Iran’s demand that the United States recognize the Islamic Republic as a partner and not a “terrorist entity.”

During a press conference after the meeting, Zarif said that while Iran is ready for direct talks with the United States, it is up to the Americans to decide if they want to talk without third parties.

“I do not think we are excluding direct talks if the U.S. is ready for it,” Zarif said. “What is important is that both countries should show their willingness to negotiate and reach a solution that is fair and mutual.”

The meeting comes as the U.S. is preparing to return to the 2015 Iran nuclear deal after announcing its withdrawal from the agreement last year. Iran has also been pushing for direct talks with the United States, but has so far refused to do so.

Zarif said that Iran is ready to negotiate on all issues, including the region, Iran’s nuclear program, and its military activities.

“I believe that both sides are ready for direct talks and we are ready to continue our negotiations with the Americans in Vienna,” Zarif said. “We are ready to discuss any issue that is on the agenda.”

The meeting comes after Iran’s foreign minister, Mohammad Javad Zarif, met with his Russian counterpart, Sergey Lavrov, in Moscow last week to discuss the situation in Afghanistan and the prospects for a diplomatic solution.

NATO has long made Russia uneasy, Columbia University professor says

“The Europeans will follow Washington’s lead in dealing with Russia”

From page 1  ▶️  On the other hand, Russian intelligence is severely concerned that the U.S. will clandestinely deploy strike weapons on NATO’s soil without its permission, which it views as a serious misstep. The Russian government must be prepared for how firepower the Russians can use in such a scenario, which could turn into a bloody fight.

There will be no military clash with the U.S. and NATO. It is sure that the U.S. will have to respond with sanctions and media coverage of so-called “anti-missile stripping” in Russia. Russia, however, is seriously concerned that the U.S. may use these sanctions and media coverage to strangle the channels of dialogue and communication.

The statement is the reason Russia has been the impact of the situation between NATO members.

It is much better than the dialogue that the U.S. will have. It returned closer to normal, and Russia has been the issue of effective changes.

What will be the results of any new military actions between NATO and Russia? Do you predict other antagonists will come to be engaged in the conflict?

This could affect how China deals further with Taiwan, and Biden could be involved in the situation.

In comparison with the U.S., I think there will be some very early days of the October Crisis of 1962, which did not yield results.

Critics say Biden can turn to executive orders to promote his policies in matters where the follow-up isn’t enough. Support is said to be being pursued in the attempt to start a first-rate campaign for the gun violence. Critics observe views as a lack of leadership.

Analysts also say despite some attempts to go around Congress, the president has not made a White House environment dedicated to tackling gun violence.

Dr. Joseph Garin, a gun reform advocate says “having that in the White House reform would be a way to help,” and will allow some time to focus on the issue.

Nevertheless, many senior American officials in consecutive U.S. administrations are influenced by the powerful lobbyist group, the National Rifle Association, which advocates for the right to bear arms.

The NRA has seen another record rise in its membership numbers and many politicians on the lobby group’s payroll don’t want to lose those voters.

A statement from M40, founded by survivors of the 2018 mass shooting at the Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Florida, said: “Gun violence is a for-profit and has the willing acceptance of the people against the population’s will, though.

The Department of Environment is seriously attempting to preserve the national biodiversity, acting with the world and making the best out of the preservation and educational capacities of other countries in this regard, he stressed.

According to the United Nations, the quarter of the Earth’s environment and about 66 percent of the marine environment have been altered by human activities, and the latest report by the Intergovernmental Science-Policy Platform on Biodiversity and Ecosystem Services (IPBES) states that more than one million species of animals and plants are in danger of extinction.

Therefore, any planning and action in the direction of optimal and principled management of biodiversity would be needed in the country, interaction and continuous cooperation of responsible bodies, and benefiting from international opportunities and funds. Five databases can play a very important and key role in maintaining biodiversity and development along sustainable development.

We hope that with the common determination of officials, the media, and citizens, the people, and environmental activists, we will preserve and protect this valuable asset for future generations.

The Iranian Red Crescent Society provides medical care for people, including mental, dental, and first aid services.

The Department of Environment is a governmental organization that is responsible for the protection of environmental resources.
